The butter men are feeling the economic cuts of the housewife on her daily and weekly purchases. All of the food men realize now that economy in the household is worse than a dozen strikes against any one commodity. Last week there were 53,874 packages received. At the rate of 60 pounds to a package, this makes a

This is the day for The Evening World's weekly review of the high cost of living. To-day's story has to do with poultry, with broilers and squabs and reasters and what-nots of the fowl line. The object of the story is to give the housewife another example of what food gambling does to ample of what food gambling does to its this week's consolation gems; a country that permits it—and also to set forth another instance of how one of our allies sat back on its calm dignity and declined to buy poultry at prices fixed by speculators.

Well, the poor poultry men, gam-

winter.

This is an increase, according to the Government report, of his percent, over last year's storage holdings. The holdings in turkeys alone are treble those of last year. This interesting collection of the dainties of the poulitry yard was turned into storage at 26 cents a pound. In 1916 just as interesting, though not half as numerous, a collection was consigned to storage at 18 cents the pound and brought out at what was accepted as a fairly reasonable price.

LITTLE TIME LEFT FOR GAMBERS TO "CLEAN UP."

The speculators are terribly upset. They want somebody to take this collection off their hands. They want it to be known that they have above $4,000,000 pounds packed away. They would like Mrs. Housewife to know that frozen poultry is much more palatable than a bit of dear tender-loin or double-dear porterhouse. Last winter they did not want her to have would like Mrs. Housewife to know that frozen poultry is much more palatable than a bit of dear tender-toin or double-dear porterhouse. Last winter they did not want her to have any part of their fancy collection. Wholesale and retail prices were kept up to the top notch of "high cost of living" consistently. "Searcity" rumors were circulated, and the storehouses were packed in the confident hope that merry England would "bite" at speculative prices.

Then Lloyd George, just to show how mean he can be, put chickens in the luxury column. The housewife can draw her own conclusions—whether England took that delicate way of telling the food gamblers over here that she would not knucking
